Route To Chlifa

The Road to Chlifa begins in Montreal, Canada, where seventeen-year-old Lebanese refugee Karim Nakad arrives in his new class. Alternately told from the perspective of an unnamed classmate and Karim's diary, the opening section of the novel establishes how Karim garners unwanted attention from both boys and girls, with the girls fawning over his good looks and the boys being jealous.

Road to Chlifa Summary | GradeSaver

The Road to Chlifa is a 1992 novel by Michèle Marineau, originally published in French. The short novel unfolds in three sections, telling the story of protagonist Karim Nakad's journey from Beirut to Chlifa, Lebanon, and, finally, to Montreal. The novel is set during the height of the Lebanese Civil War.

Road to Chlifa Summary and Study Guide | SuperSummary

"La Route de Chlifa" isn't so detestable as the high schoolers here make it appear. Yes, the middle part is tedious. There's plenty of historical and environmental description which smells of research being regurgitated. But the main story line is emotionally moving.

A symptom of the characters' narrow-mindedness in Road to Chlifa is the presence of racial stereotypes. The classmate-narrator's attribution of desert-prince qualities to Karim stands as a seemingly positive instance of stereotyping, while Dave's muttering of "he's a bloody Arab" is an example of more overt prejudice.
